Holding on to our Jewish Values Across Time

American Jews face the continuing challenge of adapting Jewish life and values to the dreams and aspirations of the dominant culture of its time. Jewish values are strengthened and energized when they are consistent with the values of the prevailing culture. And they come into question when they conflict with attractive, if not seductive conflicting values.

Significant segments of American culture independently embrace deeply-imbedded traditional Jewish values like freedom of religion, freedom of speech, tzedakah (giving) and tikkun olam (the repair of the world). However, because these same segments of American culture celebrate religious pluralism and cultural diversity, a strong work ethic, and increasing social and economic globalization, (all of which are attractive to many of us), Jewish particularism can and does come into sharp contrast.

Because we are grateful for so much that is beautiful and inspiring in the American dream, it can be painful and difficult to hold on to other traditional Jewish values when they conflict with modern American values. Religious and cultural diversity challenges the traditionally-held value of Jews marrying one another. A 24/7 work week conflicts with honoring the need for rest, spiritual growth and community. World opinion that questions the modern State of Israel's right to exist significantly affects the ability of many young Jews to form meaningful connections to the ideal and people of Israel.

Because we are a part of dynamic American life, we do not have the choice of shutting ourselves off from this cultural conflict. Nevertheless, if culture is the challenge, then perhaps learning from culture is the solution.

As Jews, we have the unique advantage of having lived in most of the dominant world cultures throughout history. We can look back on how Jewish civilizations weathered, adapted to and, in many cases, affected the surrounding, dominant cultures in which they were living.

The historical climate that most strikingly echoes American culture is Ancient Greece. During the Jewish month of Cheshvan (October - November), we learned how the Jews of Greece responded to the challenges of being a part of the compelling and spreading Hellenized world - a culture that

News from the President

Martin Presberg, President

Last year ZEV CHAFETS had an article in the New York Times Magazine titled “The Right Way to Pray?” in which he quotes Rabbi Marc Gellman of Temple Beth Torah in Long Island. (Rabbi Gellman is best known for his role on the cable show “God Squad.”) Here is Rabbi Gellman’s quote: “When you come right down to it, there are only four basic prayers. Gimme! Thanks! Oops! and Wow!”

*Wow! are prayers of praise and wonder at the creation.

*Oops! is asking for forgiveness.

*Gimme! is a request or a petition.

*Thanks! is expressing gratitude.

That’s the entire Judeo-Christian doxology. That’s what we teach our kids in religious school.”

Well, I am no expert on prayer. I leave that to our woefully undercompensated experts up here on the bimah, but I do know that I can use a crutch now and then. So with apologies to Mr. Chafets and Rabbi Gellman, I am going to use these 4 basic ideas to structure my Kol Nidre appeal.

Part 1: Wow. It is an awesome thing to stand in front of this congregation. We are a remarkable group of people. And we have chosen to come together to form a community dedicated to our common hopes and beliefs.

And all the more awesome to speak on Yom Kippur. The day that we put aside to seek atonement. I stand before you on the day that each of us stands before each other and before God, confessing our shortcomings, seeking forgiveness. Trying to make the case that we are worthy to be sealed in the book of life for another year. Wow.

Part 2: Oops. Not everything has gone smoothly at Temple this year. Not only did we face some unpredictable adversity, but there are aspects of our synagogue life that do not run as well as they could. Not all of our work groups and committees are properly staffed. And too often, those that are staffed are being carried by a limited number of overworked individuals. Not all of our communications to the congregation are timely. And not all of the communication among the clergy and lay leadership is as active and collaborative as it could be.

I had intended to use my position to actively recruit more people to leadership positions, and I had hoped to speak to many more of you about your hopes and fears for Temple Beth David. I would have liked to get to know more of you better in my first year as president.

So on this Kol Nidre eve I apologize to all of you. I am sorry for my role in miscommunications. I am sorry for the phone calls I have not made and for the initiatives I have not completed. I regret any insensitive remarks and I beg forgiveness for forgotten names and conversations that I cut short.

I am sorry, and I will try to do better.

Part 3: Gimme. This is the Kol Nidre Appeal after all, and I am going to ask you for more. More money, more time, more involvement. I am not asking for more because you don’t already give a lot. And though it is my job to help Temple Beth David survive and thrive, I am not really asking you for Temple’s sake.

I am asking you for more for your sake, because it is good for you, because you will like it, because it will make you happy.

Yes, it’s true, ‘the more you put into Temple, the more you will get out of it.’

Maybe that isn’t obvious when it comes to financial donations to Temple - the more you put in, the more you get out. But it is true.

We don’t rent this building. We don’t rent this community.

We own the building. We are the community.

Dues and donations are not rent. They are not simple business transactions. They are not payment for services rendered. They are investments in an institution that is not just about the 2010 fiscal year. It is an institution founded more than 50 years ago to serve its members and their extended families across generations.

Our current budget deficit is not a problem because we might miss payroll next week -- we won’t. It is about returning to financial stability and making sure that there is a warm, spiritual Jewish home for another generation of baby namings and weddings. It is about insuring that a Hebrew School with a strong curriculum of Israel Torah, History, Jewish Life Cycle, and Hebrew, gets better each year. And it is about living the full length of our years knowing that each of us will be eulogized in a place we call home.

You should have this year’s Kol Nidre appeal letter at home. It tells of modern research showing that you will actually be happier if you give more. Please try it and let me know the results. And after your generous participation in this year’s Kol Nidre appeal, please consider Temple Beth David in your long-term giving plans. Provide a legacy that will make you proud while you live and will honor your memory when you are gone.

embraced classical philosophy, science, creativity and the arts, -- but also a culture of mythology, slavery, physicality and warfare. We looked at the influence of Greek civilization (particularly philosophy) on the development of Jewish thought and the creation of rabbinic culture and Jewish law. We explored how are our thought process, Biblical interpretation, and our values were shaped by Greek thought. We also saw how, despite the overwhelming influence Socratic dialogue and philosophical reflection had on our traditional worldview, the Jewish value of compassion, unexpressed and uncelebrated in traditional Greek thought, nevertheless came to permeate and change, if not heal, parts of the ancient world.

Studying and discussing how Jews adapted to and affected Hellenistic Greece helped us filter American cultural values. As the Jewish historian Josef Yerushalmi pointed out, the Greeks were the fathers of history, and the Jews were the fathers of meaning in history. Continuing with this theme, we continue to derive meaning through the traditional Jewish value of learning from historical context. This learning has and will help us bring to light and thoughtfully consider how we live as good Jews and good Americans.

Ultimately, we seek to understand which values are enduring, and which are transitory -- what is merely popular, and what lasts forever. We will continue to struggle with what it means to be Jewish in any culture in which we find ourselves. And although we may not be able to resolve all of the contradictions of simultaneously living with the values of two cultures, we will strive to find a way to harmonize our existence in the world.

Temple Beth David's Lifelong Learning Community November 2010 "Learning From Everyone"

Throughout history, Jews have responded to challenges and difficulties, often in remarkable ways. This year, our community will learn from and celebrate the contributions of 13 Jewish communities (as well as taste their cuisine!).

In Kislev (November 8th - December 7th) we celebrate the Jews of France.

November 7th at the JCC's Global Day of Jewish Learning: The Jews of France - Jewish life and history is often portrayed through the lens of catastrophe. However, what has made our tradition transformative is not our losses, but the social, cultural, and religious flowering that have often emerged as part of the Jewish response to tragedy. You are invited to immerse yourselves in the culture, intellectual, artistic, and culinary contributions of the Jews of France across history. Join us today in text study from Tractate, Ta'anit, where we will examine the contributions of our greatest French interpreters, Rashi, and the French Tosafists, and sample France's contributions to Hanukkah cuisine. Rabbi Aviva Berg

November 20th - "Wrestling with Being Distinctive:" During our Shabbat services we will discuss as a community how the Enlightenment, individual liberty, and haskalah brought new benefits to and threats to the Jews of France. We will also enjoy a kiddush with French accents, sponsored by Temple and an anonymous donor suspected to be of French descent.

So yes, I am asking for more money.

But I am not just asking for more money tonight. I am asking for a far more precious resource. I am asking for more time.

You can start by coming to more services. We have services Friday night, Saturday morning, Sunday morning. Each of these has a very different feel and very different rewards. If you have not been attending services, please try them. You may be pleasantly surprised. Or you may not be pleasantly surprised. That's when we get to the hard part. Try it again. Conservative services are not the easiest, but they can be learned very quickly with a little bit of time and effort.

And I am asking for more involvement in the running of our shul. Bingo needs more people as does the Youth Committee. Perhaps you think we can do more social action or you can help with the annual picnic. We are not a large community and every one of us needs to participate.

And finally I am asking for more reaching out to each other. More phone calls, maybe even more emails, more invitations to coffee or dinner. That's the "Gimme."

4. Finally Thanks. Thank you's from the bimah are a risky business. There is no way to get everyone, and so I am not going to try. Just look around and you will see people who deserve thanks.

Thank you to each and every one of you. Thank you for the opportunity to speak. Thank you for the opportunity to serve.

Wow and Oops and Thanks and one final Gimme:

May we all be sealed in the Book of Life for a Happy, Healthy Year filled with awe, gratitude, and forgiveness.

I was recently reflecting on the great spirit of the people who make up the membership of Temple Beth David and all they do and contribute. I find it totally awesome. Words of Thank You are in order.

- Thank you to our Torah readers and all they do to make our services so great
- Thank you to those men who I always seem to see working on building repairs on Sundays

- Thank you to the Sisterhood who never runs out of ideas for helping Temple with fundraising
- Thank you for the Men's club for all it does and its major commitment to our 2011 budget needs.
- Thank you to the Golf committee and what it did to bring off a major fund raiser this year
- Thank you to all those who work Bingo and bring in much needed funds for Temple

- Thank you for those who tend to congregants who are ill
- Thank you for those who comfort mourners.

This is what is so exciting about Temple Beth David for me. So many people involved and so many making financial and time commitments.

Calling all Hanukkah Bakers!

For the third year, Temple Beth David will be sending Hanukkah Care Packages and cards to Jewish soldiers serving overseas. This year we are looking for donations of items to include in the packages.

First, we are calling all Hanukkah bakers to make cookies and other baked goods to be sent to soldiers. Last year, several Temple members baked for the soldiers and they were thankful to receive home baked treats to help them celebrate the holiday.

Second, Hanukkah cards, especially handmade or decorated by children. The soldiers loved getting cards and were very thrilled to receive cards from children.

Lastly, we are requesting personal care items such as: soap, shampoo, deodorant, toothbrushes, toothpaste, and baby wipes.

We ask that all donations be dropped at the Temple office by Nov. 15 in order to provide time to be shipped around the world.

If you have any questions or would like someone to pick up your donation (especially baked goods) please contact Keith Freedman at kdfreedy@aol.com.

The Global Day of Jewish Learning

NOV. 07-10
1 WORLD. 1 PEOPLE. 1 DAY.
www.1people1day.org

What do Washington, Tunisia, Jerusalem and Rochester have in common? The Global Day of Jewish Learning! Rochester is one of hundreds of communities worldwide that will gather on Sunday, November 7th for a day of Jewish dialogue and discovery.

All are welcome to participate in the Global Day, co-sponsored here by the Jewish Federation and the Jewish Community Center, which will take place from 9AM-4:45PM at the JCC, 1200 Edgewood Avenue.

Participants will choose from dozens of sessions – covering everything from Jewish meditation and drumming to the Jews of Cuba and the Sabbath as an “eco-holiday.” There are four tracks over the course of the day with multiple choices in each, including tracks for families with young children and for teens.

The event begins with registration at 9AM; course selection in advance is advised as space will be limited on that day. At 9:30, participants will be treated to a keynote address by Rabbi Lawrence Kushner, a celebrated writer, lecturer and teacher on the topics of spirituality and mysticism. Following are four tracks, two before and two after lunch, each with multiple course offerings. An ending address by Joshua Halberstam, PhD, a noted educator, on “A Jewish View of Gratitude,” will take place from 4:15-4:45PM. The day will be capped off with a reception.

Additional highlights include sessions with the celebrated vegan chef Tal Ronnen, who became known nationwide as the chef who prepared meals for Oprah Winfrey’s 21-day vegan cleanse; he catered Ellen DeGeneres and Portia de Rossi’s wedding and the first vegan dinner at the U.S. Senate.

Joel Lion, Spokesperson and Consul for Media Affairs at the Consulate General of Israel in New York, will do an update on current affairs in the Middle East. A panel of Holocaust survivors will address the question, “To Believe or Not to Believe?”

Cost for the Global Day of Jewish Learning is $18 per person for the entire day. Lunch is available for $8 only if purchased in advance. Teens attend free of charge. The JCC’s Playgym (ages 2-10) and the In Zone (ages 6-14) will both be open from 10-4.

Advance registration is recommended. For more information, contact Rabbi Debbi Till at the Jewish Federation, 461-0490, ext. 252.

Tikkun Olam Update

There is a lot of news from the Tikkun Olam committee. In Sept. we delivered a box of school supplies to #50 School on Seneca Ave. Nicole Rosen, #50 School Parent Liaison, was very appreciative. #50 School has about 550 students, 80% of whom live below the poverty line. They can use any help we can give them. There will be a box downstairs in the Hebrew school area next to the bottle top box for ongoing donations to #50 School. Boxes of tissues, children's underwear and children's books (either new or gently used) are especially appreciated, but any school supplies can be used. There will be a sock hop at Temple on Dec. 19 to benefit #50 School. Admission will be warm socks, mittens and gloves. (Nicole says to please donate good mittens and gloves.) We also donated many bags of apples to the Irondequoit Community Cupboard, and, again, the donation was greatly appreciated. Several families met the Sunday after Yom Kippur to pick apples, some of which were then donated. It is good to be forging connections with neighbors in the Irondequoit and north city areas whom we can help.

November's project will be a new toy collection. We will piggyback on the teens' collection for JFS families. Toys can be dropped off to a box in the Hebrew School area.

Thank you for your support.

November's Green Tip of the Month:

Some computers, modems, televisions, DVD players, and phone chargers use almost as much energy when they are off as when they are on. To turn appliances all the way off, plug several of them into a power strip and turn off the power strip, or turn off using a wall switch. If you are interested in seeing how much an appliance uses when on or off, contact Karen Berger at plautberger@gmail.com to borrow a "kill-a-watt" meter. It can be surprising what you learn from this simple test!

Moving temporarily? Please let us know and save us costly fees charged by the post office. (It will also ensure you get the bulletin while you are away.) Then give us a call or send an email when you are coming back home. Call 266-3223 OR templebd@rochester.rr.com
